Sewage problems escalating

Only Harrison, Jackson counties have ordinances

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Of the six coastal Mississippi counties, only Harrison and Jackson have enacted ordinances that give county officials authority to prevent installation of inadequate onsite sewer systems.

"The remaining four counties have virtually no control or management of disposal systems. In most cases, people can dispose of their wastes as they see fit," a recent study for the Department of Marine Resources says.

Hancock County's Board of Supervisors enacted a local statute that would have extended enforcement authority to the state Board of Health—but they rescinded that ordinance on the advice of their attorney, Gerald Gex.

Gex told the board he had erred in allowing them to enact such an ordinance, because a state attorney general's opinion holds that the county has no such power at this time. Others disagreed with that position, including Planning Commission attorney John Scafide.

Gex said he would give a report on the subject to the Board of Supervisors today.

In their report to the Department of Marine Resources, researchers Cathy Hollomon and Dr. Mark W. LaSalle said an effective permitting program can be set up to regulate onsite wastewater disposal systems locally.

But implementation of such a program is recommended at the state level, "because of greater technical resources and relative isolation from local political pressures to allow development on poorly suited sites."

The report recommends county adoption of the Southern Standard Building Code, which contains plumbing regulations.

Growth has brought dangerous pollution

BY MARY G. SEILEY

As growth has come to Hancock County, so has potentially dangerous pollution from inadequate or malfunctioning septic tanks, researchers say.

As it stands, a potentially "severe" public health risk can occur in Hancock and Jackson counties, with booming populations using septic tank waste disposal systems, a recent report to the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources says.

Only 8.2 percent of the Hancock County contains soils deemed "suitable" for properly functioning septic tank systems, the study said.

It adds that the lack of zoning and minimum lot size requirements worsen the problem.

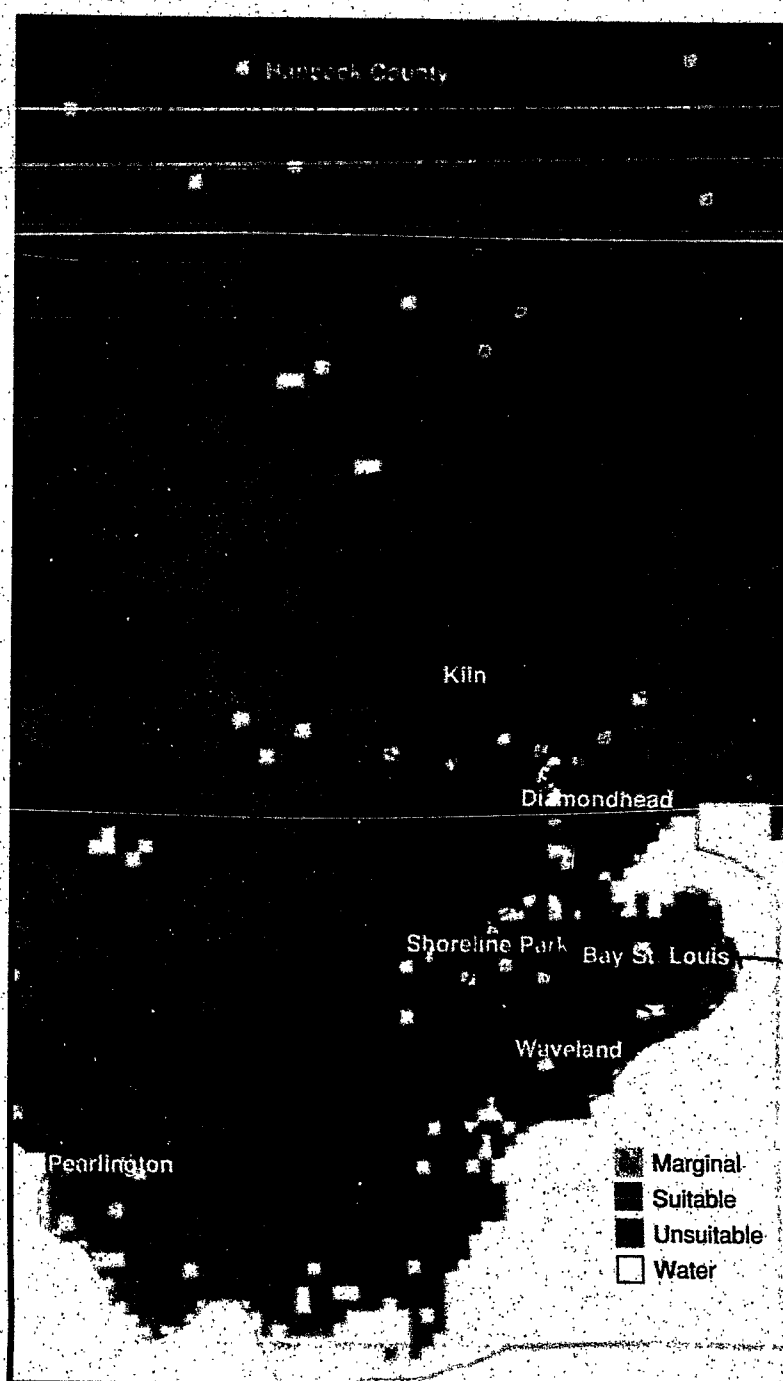

Researchers Cathy Z. Hollomon and Dr. Mark W. LaSalle of the Mississippi State University Coastal Research & Extension Center authored the report under a grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Issued in June, it deals with pollution from septic tanks in six coastal counties, including Hancock, pooling data from several previous studies and making some sweeping recommendations to control the situation.

B&B operators defend businesses

BY ED LEPOMA

Bed and Breakfast operators in Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis say their lodging businesses have little adverse impact on their neighbors, but pump a lot of money into the community and spark more restoration.

The Echo wanted to gauge B&B owners about another operation that wants to open in Bay St. Louis. The Planning and Zoning Commission, by a 5-1 vote last week, recommended a special exception to allow a Bed and Breakfast in a 150-year-old house at 972 South Beach Boulevard. Nicholas and Audrey Tournillon want to be able to rent out four rooms to lodgers. The P&Z recommendation in favor of their application now goes to the City Council for a vote at its Sept. 5 meeting.

Brenda Harrison and her husband, Vernon, bought the Adams House at 125 E. Scenic Drive in Pass Christian in August of 1994, but didn't have to get a zoning exception.

"The area was already zoned C-3, so I could virtually do anything I wanted with it—except put up a filling station," said Harrison.

Originally from Houston, Texas, Harrison said she and her husband came down to the Pass for a family reunion and, "we just fell in love with the area." The house came on the market, and they formed a partnership, the Matagorda Bay Trading Co., to buy the Victorian home, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Harrison calls her B&B the Inn at the Pass. She rents out four rooms, and says, "business has been very, very good." The house is recommended in listings distributed by the American Automobile Association, and she advertises in several local, statewide and national publications.

Doubts remain in races

BY RICHARD MEEK

Voters cast their ballots on Tuesday, but as of Wednesday evening, doubt still lingered in at least two races.

County voters continued to houseclean, however, as Dirk Dedeaux was a surprise winner in the District 93 race against incumbent Harry Frierson. Dedeaux, 22, seeking to become the youngest representative in the state legislature, garnered 1,293 votes in Hancock County. Frierson had 988.

Dedeaux will meet Republican William Frisbie in the Nov. 7 general election.

"Voters had a choice between politics and continued progress," Frierson said. "They chose politics."

The Chancery Clerk race was to be determined late Wednesday (see page 8A) when the affidavit ballots were to be counted.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Sensitivity in speech

"In regard to Father LeDoux's article 'Moral Schizophrenia,' I would like to point out that the term 'schizophrenia' is used incorrectly. Schizophrenia is a genetically predetermined, chemical imbalance in the brain and is very much a blame-free disease to its millions of victims.

"As a representative for a community-based support group for the mentally ill and their families, it is offensive to have the name of this disease used to describe or contrast the wanton violence with the tragedy in Oklahoma City, or that of abortion. There is not an individual with schizophrenia on earth who became that way due to their morality."

Obviously upset, Nancy Chrzanowski, president of the Humble Alliance for the Mentally Ill, wrote the above-quoted letter to the editor of the Texas Catholic Herald newspaper.

She is quite right, of course, in her description of the disease of schizophrenia. Likewise, she is right in rejecting any suggestion that immoral, shameless violence might have any of its roots in this disease.

This suggestion was the furthest thing from my intent in using the label, "Moral Schizophrenia." I reject that notion as steadfastly as Nancy Chrzanowski.

Bay beach erosion projects facing potentially stormy legal battles

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Bulldozers skipped a 100-foot section of the Bay St. Louis beach project Tuesday night, jumping past a potentially stormy legal issue and heading under the CSX bridge toward Bookter Street.

Meanwhile, City Council authorized the mayor to pursue legal condemnation proceedings, if necessary, to assure construction of a shoreline protection project a few hundred feet to the north.

The developments were unrelated — except they both deal with city projects to protect Beach Boulevard from erosion, and both involve sticky legal questions of public or private beachfront ownership.

In its project to lay a sand beachfront for 700 feet along Beach Boulevard, city officials decided to bypass a stretch of waterfront at the foot of Main Street.

They took the action after being put on notice of the "strenuous opposition of the Murphy family and Murphy Beachfront Development, Inc." to city plans to pump a sand beach there.

If state officials say the city is on solid legal grounds, however, city contractors may catch that section before they wrap up the project.

The Murphy family claims ownership of the parcel at the foot of Main Street, and notified the city of its objections to the project last year. Ken Murphy said Wednesday the family doesn't want the sand beach pumped because the project even if the necessary legal steps for such a project had been taken," Flottman wrote.

"In fact, there is no erosion threat to the seawall along the Murphy property, unlike the situation in certain other areas where the city apparently does not plan to pump sand, where the seawall is subject to open and obvious undermining by active erosion."

Flottman said if the city persisted in laying the beachfront, "we will pursue all legal avenues to stop the city from harming the Murphys' interests and to recover the full measure of damages available from all involved causing any such harm."

The letter did not detail why the Murphys object to the sand beach. City officials said they have had discussions with family members about several potential developments on the land that lies between Beach Boulevard and the seawall, including a hotel and/or a retail development. There also has been some talk of a commercial marina, officials say.

At one time, the Murphys would convert private property to public property, precluding any future development.

In a recent letter to Mayor Eddie Favre, attorney Kenneth Flottman said the city has no legal authority to pump sand on the property at issue.

"It is furthermore quite clear that sand pumping on the Murphy property would be unrelated to any legitimate project relating to erosion protection for the seawall and/or roadway, proposed the waterfront area as a small casino location. Ken Murphy said although the casino idea is "on the back burner" at this point, it is "not a dead issue."

Who owns the waterfront property — the state or the Murphys — is a complex legal issue. Although city officials were advised by an official in the Secretary of State's office earlier this week that they were on safe grounds assuming it's public property, they decided to avoid the issue, by avoiding the area, until a more definitive legal opinion is rendered.

Mayor Favre informed City Council of the developments during a meeting Monday night, and suggested the city bypass the strip at least temporarily. "Why?" asked council member James Thriffley. "Because we don't know where we stand," said the mayor.

Thriffley and other council members, however, said the issue is a state matter, not a city concern. "Hook 'em up and let 'em roll," said Council President Tad Black. Thriffley made a motion to "go full blast with it and worry about it later."

That motion passed in a four-to-one vote, with council member James Rutherford opposed. It directed the city to proceed to pump sand in the area in question, providing the secretary of state's office concurs.

City Planner Les Fillingame said Wednesday it may not be worth the city's effort to return to the spot and complete the beachfront there. The area in question is adjacent to a marshy growth that the city had planned to avoid anyway.

The project, overall, said Fillingame, is proceeding "very nicely." Workers are pumping sand from a sandbar north of the Highway 90 bridge, and should reach the terminus, at Bookter Street, within two weeks.

The quality of sand, he said, is even better than had been expected, and there is no indication that the supply will run short.

Meanwhile, City Council gave Favre the authority to seek condemnation, if necessary, for a 25-year easement along the waterfront in conjunction with a Corps of Engineers project to build a new shore protection structure north of Bay View Court.

All but one of the seven property owners adjoining that project have agreed to terms of the easements, required by the Corps.

But the city has to have all seven of the easements in hand by Sept. 12, or the Corps project will be canceled, officials say. Negotiations with the hold-out property owner are continuing, city officials say, and hopefully will produce an agreement without legal proceedings.

Pass mayor officially resigns; benefits uncertain

BY ED LEPOMA

Pass Christian Mayor Ted Lawyer officially resigned on medical disability Wednesday, but his retirement benefits remain up in the air.

As his last official act, the mayor took part in groundbreaking ceremonies for the Oak Villa Apartments. The $4-million, 100-unit housing development for low and moderate income families, will be built on a 7.5 acre site on East North Street, just one-half mile off Menge Avenue.

Speaking before the ceremonies, Lawyer said he has filed a protest with the Board of Aldermen, asking them to reinstate money that was not put into his retirement fund when he went on sick leave in July of 1993.

Lawyer had tried to get the board to discuss the matter in an executive session at a special meeting he called in mid-August, but it was not on the agenda and could not come up for discussion without a favorable vote by the entire board. Lawyer had called the special meeting to extend his resignation date to Sept. 29, but decided not to make the request after all.

From January through July of 1994, the Board of Aldermen cut Lawyer's monthly salary from about $2,750 a month to $1 a month; thus affecting the amount going into his retirement fund. He returned to his duties in August of this year.

"They've never cut anybody else's pay who went on sick leave or disability," Lawyer said.

Lawyer has said he had an understanding with City Comptroller Ken Saucier that his retirement would not be affected by the pay cut. But, Saucier also went on sick leave last November. He did not return, and was replaced last March by Sandra Adams.

Adams has said she found nothing in Saucier's files regarding the city's continued contribution into Lawyer's retirement fund.

Lawyer said unless aldermen restore the city's contribution, his lifetime benefits would be reduced by about $200 a month.

Ward 3 Alderman Michael Antoine was also at the ceremonies and said he would ask the City Comptroller to try to resolve the matter with the State Retirement Board.

Antoine, as acting mayor, called a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen for Wednesday night to set a date for electing a new mayor.

Meanwhile, Lawyer said if his retirement contributions are not restored, he may have to file suit in Circuit or Chancery Court to force the matter.

Casino Magic will be the pledge center for the annual Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon.

The pledge center will open with volunteers manning the phones at approximately 7 p.m. on Sunday and remain open until 10:30 p.m. Monday.

Local telethon chairman Louis Smolensky said he is shooting for a goal of $10,000 for Hancock County. Last year, county citizens donated a total of $7,400.

WLOX Television will air the telethon from 10:30 p.m. Sunday through 6 p.m. Monday.

HMC Auxiliary orientation set

Hancock Medical Center Auxiliary volunteer chairman Theresa Bourgeois announces orientation classes will be Sept. 13, 20 and 27 from 1-3 p.m. in the hospital classroom.

Le Marin days extended

Le Marin, the 1995 Decorator Show House at 406 North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, will be open to the public through the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

The extended days include Thursday, Aug. 31 through Sunday, Sept. 3, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and from noon until 3 p.m. on Sunday.

The recently restored circa 1860 beachfront cottage has been open to the public since Aug. 5 as a fund-raiser for the Hancock County Historical Society.

Each room has been designed by a different decorator. All furnishings, art and accessories in the house are for sale. Admission to the house is $5, and the funds raised will be used for enlarging and restoring the President's Room at the Kate Lohrman House, the Society's headquarters.

Auxiliary members assist the hospital staff in numerous departments, in addition to manning the information desks in the front and back lobbies. New volunteers are required to attend the orientation classes to familiarize them with the hospital environment.

One of the newest duties auxiliary members will assume is management and staffing of a gift shop, which will soon be under construction in the main entrance lobby facing Drinkwater Boulevard.

Those interested in additional information or wishing to register for the classes may contact Bourgeois at 467-7792.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Another governor's office ex-staffer turns consultant

Another ex-staff member of the governor's office has gone out on his own as a consultant and is faring pretty well using his political connections.

First it had been Andy Taggart, the former Chief of Staff for Gov. Kirk Fordice, who left over a year ago and has become a lobbyist with a dozen nice clients, particularly one who sells house arrest monitoring devices to the state Department of Corrections.

Now the corrections department is dispensing some goodies to young Geoffrey Yoste, who left the governor's employ earlier this year. Yoste, a Mississippi native, is a young Republican activist who had caught on with Fordice's staff three years ago after leaving Washington in the change of national administrations.

Yoste is trying his hand at being an independent consultant, and the best deal he has landed so far is a newly-created contract with the Department of Corrections at a going rate of $4,000 a month. The contract, approved by the state Personnel Board, was handed to Yoste without any competitive bids.

It calls for Yoste to set up and coordinate a program for sending mobile work crews of 15 to 30 inmates from each of the state's three major penal facilities to do trash pickup and small maintenance chores for counties and cities.

Yoste's responsibility would be to set up the housing and transportation of the work crews, with Department of Corrections personnel providing supervision and security for the inmates when they are outside their base institution. Significantly the contract, which started in June, runs through November, the time when this year's election cycle will end.

The whole idea smacks of a neat way to put a deserving Republican activist on the public dole at a rate of $4,000 a month until this year's campaign is done.

Corrections Commissioner Steve Puckett insists that the idea of putting Yoste on a private consulting contract was his own and not prompted by someone else — especially the governor's office. He says he couldn't spare anyone now on board in the DOC to do what he wants done, and he had known Yoste from when the two of them were in the National Guard together.

Yoste's connection with the National Guard was cited in the contract as a reason he was best suited for the task because he had a source of housing the inmate mobile work crews. However, this writer was told by a spokesman for the Mis-issippi National Guard, that while Maj. Gen. James Garner, the state Adjutant-General, had been contacted about using Guard armories to house the inmates, it was "unlikely it will be found feasible."

The contact to Gen. Garner about use of the armories, quite interestingly, had not been made by the DOC, but by Fordice's Chief of Staff, Mark Garriga.

Puckett admitted that the project had not gotten off the ground although Yoste has been getting paid since June. He said that the biggest impediment so far has been finding a place to house the inmates. If the National Guard is out, his next choice, he said, is to get the county jails to take them in. (This despite the fact that counties have been screaming for some time to get rid of state prisoners.)

Even if the scheme were to work, it appears to be rather obvious duplication of the DOC's Community Work Release Center programs which have been in operation for the past 13 years. There are now 17 Community Work Centers scattered about the state which house 1,200 minimum-risk inmates who have usable skills working out of the centers in surrounding counties. Sheriffs in most counties also utilize county prisoners in work crews to pick up trash on roadways and do similar chores.

As justification for giving Yoste the contract, DOC Deputy Commissioner David Mitchell said in the Personnel Board form, the idea of inmates performing public service work "is a plank in the Governor's platform." You'd think that's not what has been done for years.

Evidently young Yoste, a pleasant chap, has been finding time despite his task of getting a dubious inmate work crew plan underway, to do some Republican politicking. In fact, at a gathering of the Young Republicans in August, at primary election time, he reported at length how he had been traveling the state on behalf of Secretary of State candidate Chris Webster.

He admitted to this reporter that while he is on no candidate's campaign staff, he is helping Republican candidates "where I can."

Puckett insisted the mobile work crew idea would provide some prisoner labor to counties and cities who are not reached by the Community Work Centers. One thing he was not going to do, he said, is put up the crews in motels, if he can't get housing for them at Guard armories or county jails.

"If I see the project is not going to work, I'll do away with it," Puckett declared.

Patrol to target drunken drivers

The Mississippi Highway Patrol expects to be busy during the upcoming Labor Day holiday, especially on roads and highways in areas where special events are planned.

State troopers will man roadblocks on high-risk highways throughout the state much of the three-day period.

"We will be targeting drivers under the influence of drugs or alcohol," said Col. Jimmy Stringer, Mississippi Highway Patrol director.

"Our primary mission is to maintain safe and crash-free highways. We will do whatever it takes to accomplish that mission. We ask the motoring public to join us in our safety effort by obeying all traffic laws."

Stringer said Highway Patrol aircraft will be flying to locate stranded motorists and erratic, reckless and drunken drivers. Ground enforcement will be augmented by officers working federally funded "Call Back" details which will add 720 manhours to the regular force. These details are worked by troopers who would ordinarily be off-duty.

He reminded motor vehicle owners that while expired driver's license, inspection stickers and license plate decals are not considered hazardous violations, they are against the law.

"We have found that people who maintain safe vehicles with up-to-date stickers and decals are also safety conscious enough to wear their safety belts and obey posted speed limits. They would never consider drinking and driving," Stringer added.

Beginning at 6 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 1, the final holiday of the summer ends at midnight, Monday, Sept. 4.

Troopers arrested 115 drivers under the influence of drugs or alcohol during the 1994 Labor Day observance and issued 4,150 speeding citations. Three people lost their lives from injuries sustained in motor vehicle crashes during last year's Labor Day holiday.

Adhering to the following list of "Stay Alive Tips" could equate to enjoying a safe and injury-free career.

— Never drive without resting. Fatigued drivers are dangerous, especially to themselves and their passengers. — Drive slowly and carefully. — Always make sure that everybody in the vehicle is buckled up and that children up to age four are in a safety approved child restraint seat.

— Never allow children to stand up while the vehicle is moving. — Never drive more than three hours without stopping to take a break. If you become sleepy before then, stop.

— Never use drugs or alcohol and drive. — Never pick up strangers.

— Always travel in the right-hand lane of a four-lane highway unless passing another vehicle.

— Always drive during daylight hours, if possible, since it is safer.

— Having a flashlight that is easily accessible can be helpful.

— Vehicles stalled in a lane of traffic on a highway, road or street should be moved off the roadway, especially after dark.

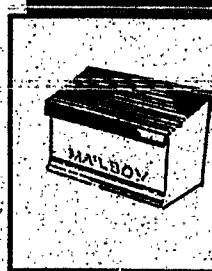

— Always lock the doors when you are out of your vehicle.

— Be courteous and yield the right-of-way.

Obey all posted speed limits. Drive slower than the posted speed when roadways are under repair or made hazardous from inclement weather.

— Turn on the headlights during daylight hours when it is raining or foggy.

— Never pass on a double yellow-line.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If neighborhood is opposed, then reject rezoning request

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to the Aug. 23 decision of the Planning and Zoning Commission to permit a Bed and Breakfast on South Beach Boulevard.

Speaking as a citizen, and not acting for any organization, I believe the right of the adjacent property owners to maintain the zoning they bought into is greater than the right of any one property owner who may ask for a zoning exception.

The property owners invested their savings based on the understanding that the city had given them through the zoning ordinance.

The property owner pleading for an exception should not be able to overturn this zoning, under any circumstances, if and when he encounters the opposition of the neighborhood.

Such pleading is similar to that in rezoning cases, where the courts have traditionally found in favor of a neighborhood which objects to the rezoning.

As the homeowners did not know of the conditions that the City Council or the Planning and Zoning Commission would eventually exact for the special exception, the homeowners are not bound by laws they did not know of. To uphold, such an exception is to act in an unjust, certainly arbitrary and probably capricious manner.

County losing much-needed health care facilities

To the Editor:

Many times I have been unable to acquire insurance or had sufficient funds to cover the cost of my personal or family's medical care.

Coastal Family Clinic never turned me away. This happened with other people as well. Now this will happen:

Now the emergency room at local hospitals will be swamped with essentially non-emergency patient care. Many people will go without medical care due to lack of funds, insurance or transportation to places that will take care of their medical

I do now have medical insurance, but still go to Coastal Family Clinic. The staff and doctors there are wonderful. There is excellent care and concerned staff, not easy to replace for any amount of money.

Please, citizens, write congressmen, representatives, big business, anyone who will listen. Keep our clinic open. Don't wait until it's too late. Start now. Let's do something.

Thank you,

Let citizens make their own choices

To the Editor:

It looks like the government is going to be successful in outlawing cigarettes. If nicotine is taken out of cigarettes there will be no reason to smoke.

What surprises me is, there is no talk about banning alcoholic beverages. More people are killed from alcohol than cigarettes every year; drunk driving accidents, violence from alcohol, suicides from alcohol and diseases, like cirrhosis of the liver.

I've been smoking 43 years since I was 17. I've never tried to quit. I like to smoke. Maybe I'm addicted to nicotine. I have no spots on my lungs, no shortness of breath, and I can outwork any man my age or younger. If we're going to ban everything dangerous we'll have to ban boxing, sky diving, motorcycle racing, automobile racing, mountain climbing, etc.

This was a much better world when a man could do what he wanted. If he wanted to drink, he drank. If he wanted to smoke, he smoked. If he wanted to go in the woods and hunt bear he hunted bear, and no one told him he'd have to stop because it was dangerous to his health.

I appear the fanatics are about to get more from Congress than us average people.

Sincerely,
Art Elkins

Visitor sees no need for beach parking lot

Dear Editor:

I recently visited Bay St. Louis and was surprised to find construction under way for a parking lot on the beach at Washington Street. I understand the need for additional parking because of increased tourism, but it doesn't make sense to build in a primarily residential neighborhood.

Why doesn't the city put the lot in a busier part of town? Let's say near Main Street. When cars are parked on both sides of Beach Boulevard, it's hard for two vehicles to pass, and traffic is bound to increase when the new beach is completed.

The area in which the lot is to be built already has parking space, and I've never seen it filled to capacity. True, I visit only a few times a year, but I've been there enough to know that extra parking space is not needed at the pier.

I think a parking lot at the corner of Beach Boulevard and Washington Street is a bad idea, and I hope those residents and visitors who feel the same way will speak up.

Sincerely,
Christian Roesler

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It is good to be back at my keyboard doing my column this week. It is good to get back to the office, even if it is only for a few hours a day.

Being away from the computer for over a month takes its toll on one's typing ability, as I am finding out this morning.

We are now in the big Labor Day weekend, which has a lot of activities for the area.

We have the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Sunday evening and Monday.

The local headquarters will be Casino Magic and will be sponsored by the Waveland Civic Association.

Also the Waveland Civic Association will sponsor a fireworks display on Sunday night in Waveland.

We will be telling you more about the Labor Day events on Sunday.

I am hoping everyone will have a safe and happy Labor Day weekend.

The results from Tuesday's elections show the importance of every vote counting in several of the races along the Coast.

It is really a shame to have so many qualified electors and see only a handful participate in a very important election.

I do want to compliment everyone who took the time and effort and voted in Tuesday's primary run-offs.

The next scheduled election will be the general election in November, and I sure hope there will be more folks casting their ballots then.

Remember to remind everyone to vote at all elections, as every vote does count.

Taylor announces $2 million in HUD improvement grants

Housing Authorities in Hattiesburg and Bay St. Louis will see a total of more than $2 million in grant assistance for maintenance and physical improvement projects, according to South Mississippi Congressman Gene Taylor.

Taylor said the funds, made available for the two authorities through the Housing and Urban Development Comprehensive Improvement Assistance Program Grant, will allow much needed upgrade projects to get off the ground. Specific improvements will include lead-based paint abatement, security doors, and electrical upgrades. Taylor said these needs and others were determined by HUD through consultations with residents and local officials.

Hattiesburg Housing Authority Executive Director Milan Hozz said that without the funds a number of projects would not be possible, the most important one being the abatement project.

Hattiesburg will receive $1,376,800 and Bay St. Louis $917,850, in grants for the modernization and comprehensive improvement program.

"We stay full on the weekends, especially," she said. Harrison said a Bed and Breakfast "is one of the nicest tourist-related businesses to operate."

"Bed and Breakfast travelers are a wonderful clientele. They come to experience the community. And, they spend lots of money going to the restaurants and shopping at the antique and art galleries."

She said guests are usually upper to middle class. Harrison said Pass Christian city leaders have been very supportive "because they recognize that any restoration is a plus for the community."

"When people come in and use their own money to preserve old houses, that's the best kind of urban renewal. The money's not coming out of anybody's tax base," she said.

She mentioned that the Adams House is 116 years old, and "it is very expensive to redo these old houses. It's not for the faint of heart." Harrison said she plans to renovate a cottage on the site to accommodate another guest.

Harrison is working with Roseanne McKinney, who runs the Father Ryan House in Biloxi, to form a statewide Bed and Breakfast Association.

She said she and McKinney feel strongly about owners living on the premises of their B&B's. "In fact, that would probably be in the by-laws of our organization," Harrison said.

Tony and Diane Brugger are transplanted Oklahomans, who came to the Pass four years ago and purchased the Old Crescent Hotel at 126 W. Scenic Drive. They renovated the 19th Century hotel, and didn't have any opposition to opening up a Bed and Breakfast since the property was already zoned commercial.

In fact, last year, the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce honored them with their Best Small Business Award.

The Brugger's rent out five rooms, and the first floor of the home has been completely restored. The home is also listed on the National Register.

Diane Brugger is a staunch supporter of Bed & Breakfast establishments.

"This is a low-profile industry. It does not adversely impact a neighborhood," she said. "In fact, just the opposite has happened."

"When we started renovating, this whole area was boarded up. Now, The Blue Rose Restaurant has opened, Valentino's (gift shop) and two more residences are being restored."

Brugger noted that Tourist Commissions, Chambers of Commerce and other groups have profiled the B&B lodger.

"What might be surprising is that most of our guests are relatively young," said Brugger.

"They are white collar, educated and they run the gamut from artists to nuclear physicists. They also leave big money behind. They go to local restaurants, gift and antique shops, and art galleries. These are not high-rollers who want to hang out at the casinos."

Brugger said she has never had a bad experience with any of her guests in the four years she's run the place.

"I've had guests that have cleared their own dishes off the table, and some have made their own beds. They've always been very respectful of our property. We have personal pictures, fine crystal and silver all over the house. Not one thing has been broken," she said. A guest took a book once, but she thinks it was by accident, not really done intentionally.

Owner Judy Lipacomb sold The Bay Town Inn Bed and Breakfast at 208 N. Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis last May, but there was little ado over the change of ownership.

The turn-of-the-century planter's house was picked up by Ann Tidwell, whose daughter Vicki Niolet, runs the Paper Moon gift shop downtown. Tidwell, a widow from Dickson, Tennessee, west of Nashville, said the experience with guests has been "an education, and wonderfully enlightening."

Tidwell has seven guest rooms. She said she was also surprised to learn that overnight bidders were relatively young.

"I've had three young people from Germany. And, I've had people who come over to the coast on business and don't want to stay in the hotels, and others who just want to get away and spend the weekend. They sit on the porch, and enjoy the scenery."

"But they go out also, to experience the community. They eat in the local restaurants and tour the local spots of interest."

Tidwell said she didn't target a specific market, but honored advertisement commitments that were made by the previous owner.

"We're listed in some travel magazines, and some B&B directories, and we've mailed out some brochures."

Tidwell said she plans to completely repaint the house, and install new cypress shutters on the front. She also plans to add a seating area in the back patio.

"Business is wonderful. The house is full most of the time, and I thoroughly enjoy my guests," she said.

Harrison juveniles zapped for vandalism

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

A 13- and a 16-year-old juvenile from Harrison County have been detained for the August 20 vandalism at Hancock High School, according to Hancock County Criminal Investigator George Burleson.

Burleson said a 13-year-old was apprehended by him on August 28, and on August 25, the 16-year-old was apprehended by Hancock County Criminal Investigator Nathan Hoda.

One is a student at the Long Beach School and the other at Bayou View School.

The vandalism included the spray painting of graffiti on three of the school complex's buildings.

Burleson said the youngsters told them the reason they did the vandalism was because they had "nothing else to do."

"We are recommending to Youth Court officials that the youngsters make restitution for their acts, and not be paid by their parents," Burleson said.

Superintendent of Education Myrna Bourgeois, said this was not the first time that type of vandalism has occurred at the school. This happened last year and had to be sandblasted off.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said, "Vandalism at any of our schools will be thoroughly investigated. Those responsible will be charged to the full extent of the law."

A paint manufacturer has been contacted by school officials for the name of a solvent to remove the graffiti.

Sept. 1 is big day for driver's license applicants

On Sept. 1 a new law goes into effect governing the issuance of driver's licenses by the Mississippi Highway Patrol to persons under 18 years of age.

The law provides that any applicant for a driver's license between the age of 15 and 18 years must present a diploma, equivalency certificate or documentation that the person is enrolled in school, seeking a GED certificate, or unable to attend school "because of acceptable circumstances." Specific forms for this documentation will be provided to the schools by the Department of Education.

Licenses issued to persons under 18 years old may be renewed annually when this documentation is provided by the licensing personnel. The yearly license will cost $5. They will be issued a regular four-year license at age 18 and above.

What I did intend was not the primary definition of schizophrenia, but the secondary one as defined by Webster: "the presence of mutually contradictory or antagonistic parts of qualities." This is an unrelated use of the word.

In other words, schizophrenes are not being labeled as the originator or main proponents of the kinds of violence decied in my early-May column about violence. If some are violent, it is not due to their schizophrenia as such.

As we do with most words, we use the word schizophrenia in a direct, literal sense as well as in a transferred sense. For another instance, we frequently refer to some terrible flaw in government as a cancer growing in our government.

Political correctness, a sometimes flawed concept, seems to be at least part of the issue here, but there is no real danger of improper speech when we understand language itself. In any case, we can change our words when misunderstood.

Life is too short, our communications are too important to be misunderstood, and there are too many words in the English language for us to languish in the shadow of one word. We should nurture neither sacred cows nor sacred words.

What the article on violence did want to say in a nutshell is that, apparently unbeknown to themselves, many people who stridently opposed the violence in Oklahoma City would not have hesitated to abort the same children killed there.

This is a very confused, contradictory dichotomy of morality which savages tender fetuses up to the point where they see the light of day, then protects babies with ferocity.

At any rate, I commend Nancy Chrzanowski for being alert and for being so deeply committed to her charge as president of the Humble Alliance for the Mentally Ill. May she enjoy every blessing and grace of God in all her endeavors.

Words aside, all of us in the world would do well to be consistent in our approach to morality, which, after all, translates into the will of God. Life is equally priceless in the unborn, in all races and ethnic groups, end everywhere.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

Join the kindness revolution. Imagine what would happen if there were an outbreak of kindness in the world, if everybody did one kind thing on a daily basis.

Start with the small, the particular; the individual, to bring delight and goodness to yourself and others.

Guard within yourself that treasure, kindness. Know how to give without hesitation, how to lose without regret, how to acquire without meanness. Know how to replace in your heart, by the happiness of those you love, the happiness that may be wanting to yourself.

Have a great week.

Trace history and crafts at the Pioneer and Indian Fest

From before the Indians came until today, animal tracks, then human feet and wheels marked out the Natchez Trace. The Craftsmen's Guild of Mississippi and the National Park Service invite the people of today, old and young, to join them on a trip through Trace tradition at the 18th annual Pioneer & Indian Festival Saturday, Oct. 28 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. at the Mississippi Crafts Center one mile north of Jackson on the Natchez Trace Parkway.

The celebration will appeal to eyes and ears and touch and tongue. Crafts will predominate: blacksmithery and brooms, leather, wood and clay, cloth to weave and quilt, baskets of oak and cane and pine straw.

Music and dance will come from diverse traditions: Choctaw dance and chants from Tucker and Bogue Chitto schools, African American spirituals, plus blue grass gospel by the Cedar Ridge Band of Edinburg.

There will be homemade breads from the outdoor oven by Liz Courtney, country cooking by the Benton Boosters, plus Choctaw hominy and frybread from black iron pots by Lou Jane Sam and Effie Bell.

New this year, professional storytellers from varied origins will speak of their own people and the Trace. Besides the Choctaw of Mississippi, visitors will likely meet a craftsman or a story teller from the Cherokee of North Carolina, the Creek of Alabama, the Seminole of Florida and the Chickasaw, once of Mississippi, but now in Oklahoma.

Newcomer slays political giant in House runoff

BY ED LEPOMA

A 22-year-old newcomer to politics proved to be a giant killer in Tuesday's Democratic primary for the Coast's newest House district.

Dirk Dedeaux, who apprenticed under 5th District Rep. Gene Taylor, defeated incumbent state Rep. Harry Frierson Jr. to win the nomination for the District 93 House seat.

A complete but unofficial tally gave Dedeaux 1,866 votes or 58 percent compared to 1,326 or 42 percent for Frierson.

Dedeaux will face Republican William M. "Bill" Frisbie in the Nov. 7 general election.

If elected, he would be the youngest person ever seated in the state Legislature.

Dedeaux, who was born and raised in the Sellers Community in north Hancock County, said he plans to win the general election and will travel the district to meet and explain his platform to voters.

He said, "I felt confident going into the runoff. My greatest concern was a low voter turnout, but we managed to get our people to the polls."

District 93, which encompasses parts of Harrison and west Jackson counties, everything north of I-10 in Hancock County and parts of Pearl River County, has approximately 14,500 registered voters.

Frierson was first elected to the new House seat in 1993. He said he was disappointed in the outcome, but voters made their choice.

"Hancock County had a choice for politics or continued progress. They chose politics. I'm not ashamed of anything I did. I have a record to stand on, and I'm proud of it," Frierson said.

Dedeaux works for Appli-ance Parts Co. Inc. in Gulfport. He holds a BS degree in political science and a BA in modern languages (Russian and German) from Mississippi College. In 1993, he worked as a Congressional intern in Washington, D.C. for Rep. Taylor.

His family has been in south Mississippi for eight generations.

Vote

As of Tuesday night, Timothy Kellar held a slim 13-vote lead, 2,725-2,712, over Jimmie Ladner Jr. However, 48 affidavit ballots and one absentee ballot were to be counted Wednesday.

The winner will meet Republican Kay Johnson in November.

Lonnie "Jeep" Ladner defeated James Ward, 573-538, to gain a spot in the District 1 Supervisor race against Republican Pat LeFavre and Independent Lionel T. Bordages.

"I'm relieved and ready to go back to work," Ladner said. "I would like to thank my supporters and ask for their continued support."

In District 4, Steve Seymour persevered over Harry Favre in a race closer than predicted by several experts. Seymour had 502 votes, Favre 382.

However, Seymour's plans for the general election may be a bit premature. Thomas Williams, who finished third in the Aug. primary, is contesting that election. If Williams is successful, Seymour would have to face

Williams in a runoff before the general election.

The eventual Democratic winner will face Republican Joey Manieri and Independent T.H. "Doc" Toups.

Leo Ladner won the Constable East race, 1,226-1,036 over Burt Johnson and will run unopposed in November.

Constable West winner Gary Bennett will face Republican Richard Bessey in the general election. Bennett easily defeated Erin Moran, 1,744-1,293.

Seymour may face one more runoff

BY RICHARD MEEK

Steve Seymour apparently secured the Democratic berth in the District 4 Supervisor race Tuesday with a runoff victory over Harry Favre. But if primary loser Thomas Williams has his way, Seymour will face one more runoff before the Nov. 7 general election.

Williams is contesting the Aug. 8 primary election, when he lost a runoff spot to Favre by three votes. He is petitioning the Democratic Executive Committee to discount 10 ballots, and include others not counted on the night of the election.

If the committee agrees, then Williams would be the second place finisher behind Seymour in the Aug. 8 election, necessitating a new runoff.

Last Wednesday, Williams' attorney, Malcom Jones, and J.P. Compretta, attorney for Circuit Court Clerk Pam Metzler, spent six hours examining the ballots cast in the District 4 race. No discrepancies were found.

Jones then requested the voters' receipt book and the poll managers' receipt books.

Williams is claiming irregularities in the receipt books, and reiterated his earlier claim that voters in Districts 4 and 5 were registered and voted in the wrong district.

Jones did not return phone calls made by the Sea Coast Echo.

In Tuesday's runoff, Seymour garnered 502 votes, Favre 382.

Kellar declared winner in Chancery Clerk race

BY RICHARD MEEK

Timothy Kellar finally rested easy on Wednesday night.

After a restless night Tuesday, Kellar was declared the winner in the Democratic Chancery Clerk runoff Wednesday following a count of the affidavit votes. Kellar's final total was 2,740 votes, 18 ahead of Jimmie Ladner Jr.

As of Tuesday's tally, Kellar held a 13-vote lead.

"It was a rough night," a relieved Kellar admitted. "But I knew that everything that could have been done was."

"It was out of my hands."

The affidavit ballots did not alter the outcome of any of the runoff races.

Kellar will face Republican Kay Johnson in the Nov. 7 general election. Johnson is currently the Bay St. Louis City Clerk.

"We did not look beyond this, so we have to go back to our people and start over," Kellar said. "It's a new game. We have stepped up to the next level."

Kellar complimented Ladner on running a clean race. He said the two had decided in March to focus on the issues, and campaign "on our merits and qualifications."

Ladner, 33, who admitted he is out of the political arena "for the first time since I was 22," said he will take some time to spend with his family and "do some fishing."

"I've been in the race since January, and any time you come so close, naturally you're disappointed," he said. "But we both ran an issue-orientated campaign. That's what campaigns are for."

"We ran a clean race," he added. "The people of Hancock County have been good to me."

Waveland native nominated for Emmy Award

BY ED LEFOMA

Joan Wilkinson of Waveland is telling everybody she can. Her daughter, a makeup artist in Hollywood, is nominated for an Emmy.

Wilkinson's daughter, Cheri Minns, is nominated for "Outstanding Individual Achievement in Makeup For A Mini-series or a Special" for the recently broadcast "Liz: The Elizabeth Taylor Story." The Emmys will be broadcast nationally September 10, but winners in Minn's category will be announced in a black tie event Sept. 9, held at the Pasadena Civic Exhibition Hall.

Minns did the makeup for Sherilyn Fenn, who played Elizabeth Taylor, in the two-part mini-series, which aired May 21 and 22. Minns' job was to age Fenn from 17 to age 59.

She's also worked with other stars, including Robin Williams and Nathan Layne, who will star in a screen version of "La Cage," that will be titled "Birds of a Feather."

Other stars Minns worked for include Demi Moore, Michael Douglas and Donald Sutherland.

Cheri Minns

Cheri Minns, now a makeup artists to Hollywood stars, gets a hug from Robin Williams (left) and Nathan Payne. Minns' mother, Joan Wilkinson, had lived in Waveland for more than 25 years.

She's currently doing the makeup for "Multiplicity," which will feature Michael Keaton and Andy McDowell.

Minns' mother said she will go out to California to be with her daughter for the gala evening.

55 Alive Driving Course

Q: What is the number one driving violation for persons over age 55?

A: "Failure to yield the right-of-way." In most states the law gives no one the right-of-way. It only says who must yield it. If in doubt, be safe and yield.

Trinity Nursery School will have open house Friday, Sept. 1 from 10 a.m.-noon.

...found that 50.3 percent of Hancock land is unsuitable for septic tanks (or 50.3 percent); 128,804 acres are "marginal" (41.5 percent), and 25,569 acres were labeled "suitable" (8.2 percent).

As it stands, state law doesn't require Health Department approval of on-site waste disposal systems -- and only 16 counties in the state have adopted local regulations to "safeguard the individual homeowner and help preserve the quality of surface and groundwater supplies," accord-

...Hancock is not among those, although the Planning Commission has asked the Board of Supervisors to enact a local law that would forbid installation of septic tanks on properties that cannot accommodate the wastewater generated.

Earlier this month, the Health Department's district supervisor, Jim Weston, said the now-uncontrolled installation of on-site sewer systems has left homeowners free to install basically worthless "treatment" mechanisms for wastewater.

Often, property owners run virtually untreated wastewater or raw sewage directly into county ditches or bayous, he noted.

The recent study backs up what Weston said.

"Any new development dependent on conventional systems in the southern half of Hancock County would result in improperly treated or untreated septage entering groundwater supplies, lakes, bayous, nearby beaches and potential drinking water supplies.

"All the priority problem areas, the areas documented with failing systems, and some of the projected population growth areas are located in this portion of the county. The northern half of the county consists mainly of marginal soils that may, or may not, effectively treat wastes from conventional septic systems."

The study identified all lands south of Interstate 10 as unsuitable for underground absorption. Bayside Park and Shoreline Park were cited as having the highest failure rates of septic tanks, followed by Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore, Pearlington, Garden Isles and Jourdan River Isles.

While 1990 Census data shows 49 percent of Hancock households disposing of waste through septic tanks, growth since then has substantially increased the number of such systems in use, the report said, having "direct and immediate impacts on the quality of surface and groundwater supplies."

State Health Department surveys have documented instances of the "excessive failure rate of individual on-site wastewater disposal systems in the coastal counties," the study says. That failure rate is attributed to two factors: soils that are incapable of filtering and treating the wastes, and "weak state legislation that provides no enforcement authority to assure that systems are installed and operating properly."

"When the system does indeed fail or back up, often the homeowner will connect an outfall pipe directly from the house to a nearby drainage channel, even though existing legislation prohibits direct discharge of effluents into adjacent waters, ditches, channels, etc."

As early as 1984, studies found a 75 percent failure rate of septic tanks in Clermont Harbor and East and West Anseley. Numerous homes and businesses were found to have direct discharges that year.

In 1986, officials found failure rates ranging from 62 percent in Jourdan River Isles to 92 percent in Shoreline Park, in areas where centralized sewers were not available. A 1994 survey found 90 percent of the systems in Belle Isles subdivision were failing or having discharge malfunctions.

Counties

It also calls for the state Department of Marine Resources to coordinate rules and regulations with local officials.

"Because malfunctioning disposal systems have direct and cumulative adverse impacts within the coastal zone, it is only logical that inspectors with DMR become empowered ... to correct problems when discovered during the normal course of performing inspections for wetland permit issuance."

The State Board of Health, meanwhile, should be granted administrative authority to fine violators, the study recommended.

Across the state, only 16 counties have passed ordinances that require inspections and approvals of septic systems before water and power connections are made. Many individual water associations have compliance rules before water hookup is allowed, the report noted.

In addition to requiring permits before septic tank systems are allowed to operate, officials should require renewal permits after a few years of operation to ensure the systems are still functioning properly, the researchers said.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Diamondhead Squares

Diamondhead Squares are calling all potential square dancers.

This is the last opportunity to take lessons in Diamondhead for a year. The club starts from scratch, and no prior dance experience is necessary.

Lessons begin Sept. 19 at 7 p.m., couples or singles. Call 255-4010 or 255-5777 for information.

There is a dance every Tuesday, 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the St. William's Recreational Hall off Kiln-DeLisle Road, three miles north of Exit 20 I-10.

Once lessons begin, the dance will be from 8:30-10 p.m. Call 255-7097 or 255-2500.

While area governments, including Hancock County officials, are working to provide public sewer systems, "the rapid residential growth within the coastal counties has outdistanced the ability of local governments to build centralized sewage collection facilities to serve the population."

Researchers said the "single most important method of limiting pollutants from septic systems to surface and groundwater sources is to restrict the density of septic systems in an area."

Environmental Protection Agency officials say areas with septic tank densities greater than 40 systems per square mile (or one system per 16 acres) are areas of potential groundwater contamination.

When the septic tank issue last came up at the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Planning Commission and Wastewater District I officials urged the board to take immediate action to prevent additional, inadequate septic tank systems from being allowed in the county.

Scafide said if the county didn't feel comfortable legally assigning the final approval say-so to the Board of Health, as state law previously had provided, officials could enact the plumbing portion of the Standard Building Code instead and require that an engineer certify the viability of additional septic tank systems.

District 3 Supervisor Howard Lizana said he wanted to read the proposed code before further consideration. But Tuesday, Lizana said the data he'd been given by Seaside only covered septic tanks, not plumbing in general. He said he's since requested a copy of the entire plumbing code to review.

He and other supervisors were irritated that Hancock County's septic tank problem was detailed in a recent Sea Coast Echo story -- they want to emphasize the millions of dollars the county has invested already to install public sewer lines in portions of the county.

"It's not like people have just done nothing," said Lizana of county officials.

Still, he questions the ramifications of enacting a code regulating plumbing. "We're not going to jump up here and do something without knowing if it's good or bad," Lizana said. But he added: "We all know something has to be done."

Apollo XIII astronaut Fred Haise honored at Stennis Space Center

BY RANDY PONDER

Apollo XIII astronaut Fred W. Haise, Jr. was honored Saturday, Aug. 26, 1995 at John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

The Biloxi native was one of three astronauts on NASA's ill-fated third human lunar landing mission, launched on April 11, 1970. The mission was aborted after an oxygen tank ruptured, disabling the space craft and prompting command module pilot Jack Swigert to radio to ground control in Houston, "We've got a problem here."

The whole world anxiously awaited as NASA frantically attempted to find a way to return the marooned astronauts safely to Earth before their limited battery power and oxygen supply was exhausted.

By utilizing components of the lunar landing craft attached to the command module, NASA was able to save the trio, averting a national disaster. The weary and weak astronauts splashed down in the Pacific Ocean less than one mile from the recovery carrier U.S.S. Iwo Jima, after five days, 22 hours and 54 minutes in space.

Following his Apollo XIII mission, Haise was commander of five approach and landing tests using space shuttle Enterprise in 1977. Haise retired from NASA in June 1979 and is currently president of Grumman Technical Services in Titusville, Florida, where he and his wife Patt reside. Included among his many awards and accomplishments is the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

At a press conference prior to the presentation of a thirteen minute film about the Apollo XIII mission, Haise stated, "We all live on a space ship called Earth. We don't have the luxury of a backup lunar module or lifeboat. We are doing things to make our environment less liveable than we think. We need to go out into space and find another place to inhabit with the human race."

Haise also said, "All the PG-13 language used in the movie 'Apollo 13' was added by Hollywood. They said we were too dull."

Following the video, Haise presented to Stennis Space Center director, Roy Estess, several mementos from the Apollo XIII mission for exhibit in the SSC visitors center.

The event concluded with a tour of the Navy's super computer complex, a fish fry and a 750 second static firing of the space shuttle main engine.

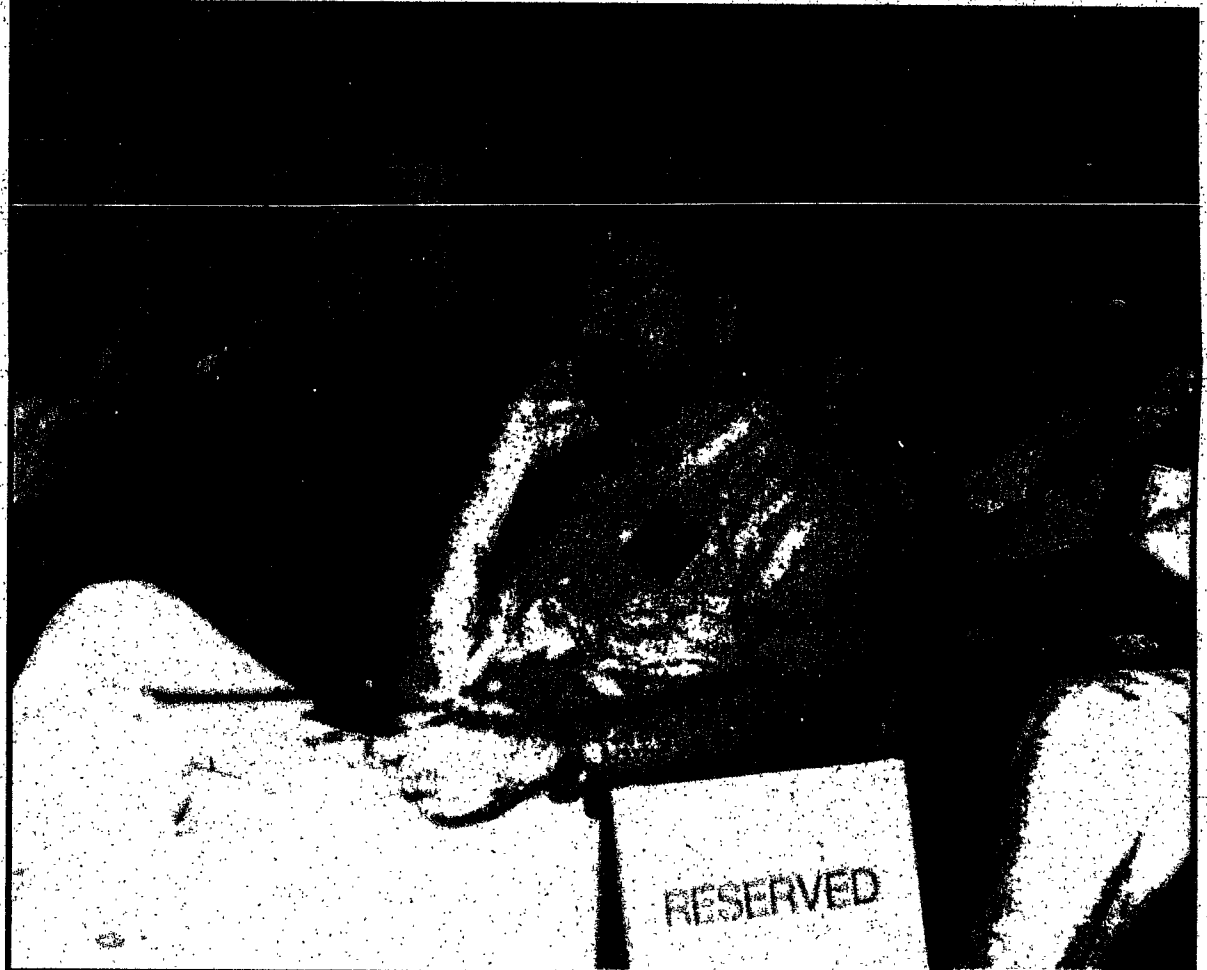

The affair was sponsored by Partners For Stennis, a group of local business and civic leaders formed to promote and support the many programs located at the facility.

2B-THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, AUGUST 31, 1995

The Bob Harmon Football Forecast

College Football Highlights

For Sept. 2

The Nebraska Huskers begin the defense of their national championship on Thursday night with what should be an easy Big Eight win at Oklahoma State. In last year's matchup in Lincoln, the Huskers, playing without Tommie Frazier, led by only 9-3 at the half but scored 16 points in the third quarter on the way to a 32-3 win.

Walk-on replacement QB Matt Turman completed only one pass, but he got lots of help from I-back Lawrence Phillips, who carried 33 times for 221 yards. True, the Cowboys have a new coach, Bob Simmons, but the Huskers have Mr. Frazier back. They'll win by nearly four touchdowns.

One of the best games of the week will take place in Madison, Wis., where the Wisconsin Badgers host Colorado. The Buffaloes whipped the Badgers 55-17 last year in Boulder, though Wisconsin outran Colorado, 264 yards to 171, and Badger running back Brent Moss (118 yards) was the ESPN Player of the Game, while the Wisconsin defense held Heisman Trophy winner Rashaan Salaam to a season-low 85 yards on 26 carries. (The Nebraska D intercepted Darrell Bevell four times.)

This one will be much closer, with all kinds of incentive on Wisconsin's side: Colorado's new coach, Rick Neuheisel, a native of Madison, has promised a victory. He'll get it, but by only two points.

Perhaps the best game of the week matches last year's third- and fifth-place finishers in the Big Ten, Michigan and Illinois, in Champaign, Ill. In this crucial early game, we're picking the Illini to upset the Wolverines by one.

Michigan beat Illinois 19-14 in '94, but the game was never out of reach, and the Illini beat the Wolverines in '93 after tying them in '92, so they no longer question their ability to stay with a team that traditionally dominated them. Don't miss this one.

In the West, defending Pacific-10 camp Oregon visits Western Athletic Conference runner-up Utah and should win by four. The Ducks are out to avenge their 34-16 loss to the Utes in Eugene last year, in which Oregon turned the ball over three straight times after heading out to a 10-7 lead and gave up 309 passing yards to Utah's Mike McCoy. That was a couple of games before the Ducks figured out how good they could be, though, and this year they'd like very much to return to the Rose Bowl.

NFL Forecast for Sunday and Monday Sept. 3-4

Arizona, 17—Washington, 13
(Sunday) The Cardinals beat the Redskins twice in '94, each time with a field goal on the final play, 19-16 in overtime in D.C. and 17-15 in Phoenix. The Cards have won four straight for the 'Skins.

*Atlanta, 20—Carolina, 14
Unless Falcon QB Jeff George has his offense juiced like it was in a 37-0 preseason drubbing of the Dolphins, this may be the kindest way for Dom Capers' Panthers to ease into the NFC West.

Cleveland, 29—New England, 26
The Browns' defense picked off seven Drew Bledsoe passes in two wins in Cleveland last year, the second a 20-13 wild-card playoff. And the Browns have won their last four games in Foxboro.

*Denver, 27—Buffalo, 21
In week four of '94, John Elway threw incomplete at the Bills' 4 with 21 seconds left and Buffalo won 27-20. More significantly, both teams finished under .500 for the first time since '82.

*Green Bay, 30—St. Louis, 18
The Packers had a closer call than they would've preferred against the Rams last year, having to rally from 14 points down at home to win 24-17. L.A./St. Louis hasn't beaten G.B. since '91.

Houston, 22—Jacksonville, 15
With lots of free-agent-tempting money, the Jaguars may be the best expansion club in years, with the potential to win several games and challenge teams like these Oilers. But not quite year.

*Indianapolis, 21—Cincinnati, 12
Having lost their dazzling top draft pick, running back Ki-Jana Carter, for the year, the Bengals win the Preseason Heartbreak Award. Last year the Colts won a close one in Cincinnati, 17-13.

Kansas City, 31—Seattle, 20
Yes, we'll all miss Joe Montana, but the Chiefs may only improve with the younger, stronger Steve Bono in charge. In '94 K.C. beat the Seahawks at home, 38-23, then lost in Seattle, 10-9.

*Miami, 28—N.Y. Jets, 26
Another episode in one of the NFL's most entertaining rivalries. We will never forget Dan Marino's faked-spike-turned-winning-TD-toss in Miami's come-from-behind 28-24 win last November.

Minnesota, 24—Chicago, 21
Another episode in one of the NFL's blackest and bluest rivalries. In '94 the Vikings beat the Bears twice in the regular season, but Chicago won when it counted — in the playoffs — 35-18.

*Oakland, 28—San Diego, 23
Who can bet against the renegade Raiders, now once more ensconced in the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum? The Chargers' march to the Super Bowl has been followed by sloppy preseason play.

*Philadelphia, 32—Tampa Bay, 17
Taking over for Rich Kotite as the Eagles' coach, Ray Rhodes hopes that he and former 49er star halfback Ricky Watters will bring new life to the team — so this game better not be too close.

*Pittsburgh, 29—Detroit, 19
These two teams haven't met since '92. The Steeler defense, which looks like it may be even better than last year, should shut down Detroit's passing game and corral Barry Sanders as well.

San Francisco, 26—New Orleans, 22
We seldom hear as much about preseason injuries as we've heard from the 49ers — except last year, from these same 49ers, who went on to do just fine and beat the Saints twice along the way.

Dallas, 30—N.Y. Giants, 28
(Monday) Giant QB Dave Brown may be ready to lead N.Y. to greatness, and, with Troy Aikman and the Cowboys already there, this has the makings of a classic Monday-nighter. They traded wins in '94.

Tom Landry honored

The New Orleans Touchdown Club presented former Dallas coach Tom Landry with its prestigious Pete Rozelle Award during the 29th Annual Meet the Saints Luncheon Aug. 24 at the Hyatt Regency in New Orleans. During his 29 years as Cowboy coach, Landry guided Dallas to 18 playoff appearances, 13 division championships and a record five Super Bowls. The Cowboys won Super Bowls VI and XII. BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

A win under any circumstances at St. Stanislaus in recent years has been cause for celebration.

But given the black cloud hovering over the Rocks' program the past few weeks, SSC's season opening 12-0 shutout of Pass Christian Friday was nothing short of spectacular.

The difficulties began when former coach Brannon LeBlanc abruptly quit to take a similar position at Ocean Springs High School shortly before the school year began.

Coach Mario Genna was hired to take over the program three weeks before the opening game. During his short tenure, Genna has had to endure a brief altercation with soccer coach Tim Burns and the exodus of 16 players on the roster during spring training, including seven starters, dropping the squad to 45.

"It's been difficult, but it's getting better every day," Genna said. "These kids put a lot of trust and loyalty in (LeBlanc). Some of them are still recovering from that."

"But we've told them you can't worry about the past, that you can only take care of the present."

The present is a 1-0 SSC team that gave up only 29 yards rushing to Pass Christian. But Rock fans have learned the hard way to temper their enthusiasm.

A year ago, the Rocks also opened with a victory that broke a long losing streak but followed with nine consecutive losses. The Rocks travel to Green County tomorrow night, meaning a tiring two-hour bus ride.

"You can never tell from one week to another," Genna said. "We have a lot working against us. But (winning the first game) gives us a better chance to have the same results."

Genna said the team has responded well, considering he is the fourth coach in three years at SSC.

"I'm a hard-nosed disciplinarian," Genna said. "I'm sure I'm doing things different than anyone else because everyone is different."

"But the kids are responding, and they are listening. But the win showed the kids the hard work of the past three weeks has paid off."

"(St. Stanislaus) has been a stepping stone for a lot of people. We want to change that."

Genna said he hopes the victory in his coaching debut will be the cornerstone in a building process that will help restore the Rocks' once proud tradition.

Let's get this over with as quickly and as painless as possible for all of you diehard Saints fans. No, your beloved heroes will not be in the Super Bowl, nor will they even reach the NFC playoffs. Sad to say, the Saints will lose more games than they win.

With that out of the way, enjoy the fall and save your "Who Dats" until next year.

The Saints enter Sunday's season opener against San Francisco with more questions than Double Jeopardy. Gone is the defensive braintrust, as well as Morten Andersen, arguably the best kicker in NFL history.

Although controversial with the fans, the decision of the Saints staff to let Andersen go is sound. In the days of salary cap limitations, paying a kicker over $1 million a year is a luxury a mediocre team like the Saints is unable to afford.

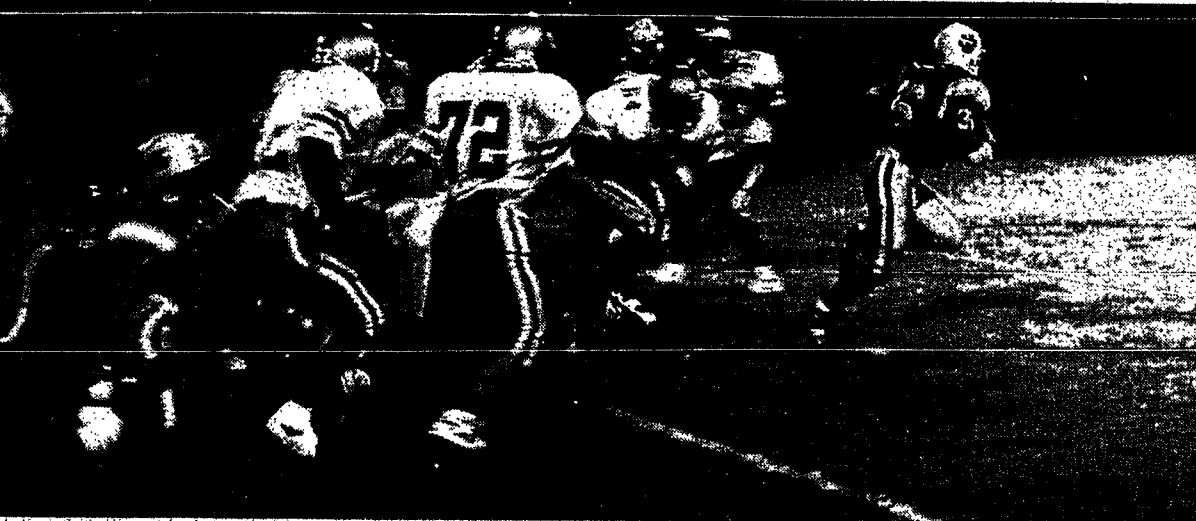

Unfortunately, coach Jim Mora must be questioned for retaining Chip Lohmiller and releasing Cary Blanchard. Blanchard's preseason performance far surpassed Lohmiller's, so why does Mora keep the latter, who has even had trouble with PAT's? The coach must know something the rest of us do not.

Defensively, the Saints will employ the Swiss cheese scheme, lots of holes to pick through. Offensively, New Orleans should score often, but cannot possibly be potent enough to outscore its opponents.

College football gave fans a teasing of what promises to be a most exciting season last Saturday. Michigan and Ohio State sent messages to Big 10 favorite Penn State for the Nittany Lions not to make those Pasadena reservations just yet.

Of the state colleges, Ole Miss faces the most difficult challenge, taking on national contender Auburn. Mississippi State should have an easy time with Memphis, ditto Southern Miss with Northern Illinois.

The Top 10
1. Notre Dame...easy opener
2. Florida State...expected laughter against Duke
3. Auburn...open with lowly Rebels
4. Penn State...opener still a week away
5. Nebraska...on the tube tonight
6. Texas A&M...to help usher in new LSU era
7. Southern Cal...tradition may be back
8. Ohio State...impressive against Eagles
9. Florida...should challenge for SEC title
10. Oklahoma...a return to glory?

William Carey soccer returns ten starters

William Carey Men's Soccer team returns 10 of 11 starters and 14 of 17 lettermen. The Carey men finished ranked 19th in the final 1994 NAIA National Poll.

The 1995 schedule has the Crusaders playing five of the pre-season top 10 teams and seven of the NAIA 1994 final top 20.

Key additions to this year's squad will be Steven Wooger-

Scott Slidell, sophomore transfer from the University of Evansville where he was the starting keeper for the NCAA Division I National Power; Philippe Lindson, Perth, Scotland, sophomore transfer from Martin Methodist, where he was voted Most Outstanding Freshman in the conference.

Chris Harris, freshman defender from Montego Bay, Jamaica. Harris is a starter for the U-23 Jamaican National Team and a member of the Senior National Team.

Key returning players are four All-District members of the 1994 Carey squad. Solomon Kidane, senior midfielder from Stockholm, Sweden. Kidane also named Most Valuable Player for the 1994 Crusader.

Todd Eason, sophomore defender from Atlanta, Ga.; Marco Mthembu, sophomore defender from Durban, South Africa, and Milton Griffiths, sophomore midfielder from Montego Bay, Jamaica.

Coach Doug Stovall, starting his ninth season as the William Carey College men's head soccer coach, will open the 1995 campaign in Pensacola, Fla. Labor Day against the University of West Florida. Coach Stovall will be looking for his 100th collegiate victory during the 1995 season.

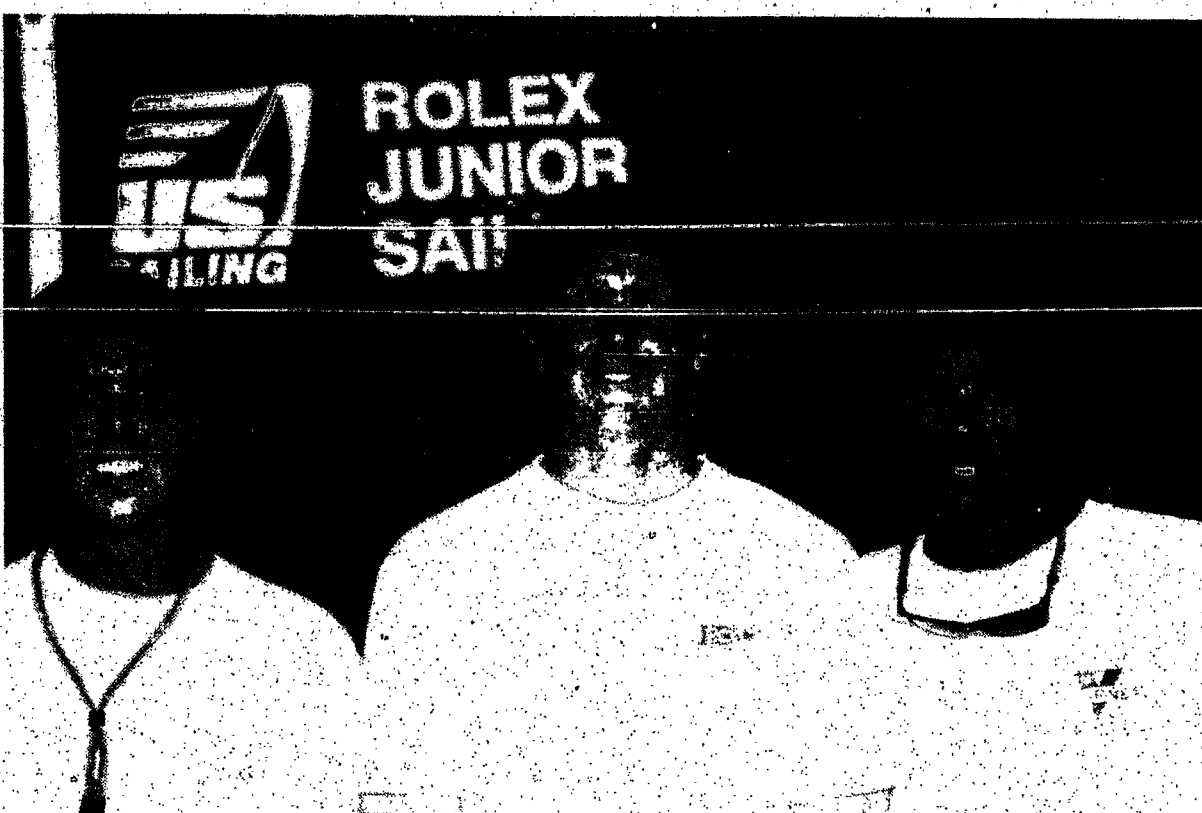

Organism identified

The main organism contributing to the red tide bloom located within the Mississippi Sound has been identified as Gonyaulax monilata, a dinoflagellate, said Jerry Mitchell of the Department of Marine Resources.

Biologist Harriet Perry of Gulf Coast Research Lab said, "Although a toxin is produced by this organism, there are no documented reports of the toxin affecting warm-blooded vertebrates. However, an allergic reaction may be experienced by some people who swim in the affected waters or inhale the sea spray."

These red tides and algal blooms are common, natural occurrences that develop in the enriched waters of the Sound, especially during the hot summer months. All red tides do not appear red, but may also appear yellow or brown during the bloom.

Two flyovers were made by DMR, after which water samples were taken for analysis at the laboratory.

Sears Cup Finals

Skipper John Dane, left, with crew Oliver Peneguy (both of Pass Christian), and Rush Galloway of Gulfport, recently competed at the 1995 U.S. Sailing/Rolex Junior Championships held in Chicago, Ill. Racing in the triplehanded division for the venerable Sears Cup, skipper Dane and crew sailed in the Lightning fleet to a second-place finish in the overall standings to win the silver medal and the Judge's Trophy. Sexton and Barber share Street Stock features

By Melvin Breland
Randy Sexton and Lonnie Scarbrough headed the 16-car field for the Street Stock feature at Sun Coast Speedway in Pass Christian.

Sexton and Scarbrough were side by side on the green flag lap, but as they started the second lap, Sexton got out of shape causing several cars to pile up in the number two corner.

This brought out the red, which allowed Sexton, along with several other cars, to make a pit stop for minor repairs. Sexton also was able to get his frontrow starting spot back. On the complete restart, Sexton was able to get the jump on Scarbrough for the lead, but would have to battle him all the way to the checkers. Chuck Smith claimed the third spot.

In the B maine Street Stock feature, it was Rodney Barber taking the lead from his front row starting position. Barber had little trouble in going flag to flag for the win, but the remainder of the field was filled with action.

Jerry Winstead got crossed up in turn one, and with a little help barrel-rolled up the track. Fortunately, Winstead's only damage was to his car. Killer Kennedy and David Hough settled in the second and third spots, respectively. Heat wins went to Chris Moran, Killer Kennedy and Randy Deschamp in three action-filled heat races.

The Pro Stock division supplied some of the better action of the night. Jamie Luzenberg and Donald Parker went wheel-to-wheel in the feature race after Parker had worked his way from the third row. Bubba McQueen was in the thick of things before mechanical problems retired him along with Larry Cifra for the night.

Scott Holt claimed the third spot in his new 26C, which was making only its second appearance. A couple of new faces showed up in the winner's circle in Heat race wins as Charles Gaines and Chet Morrison took the checkers first.

Four Cylinder Modified saw Jamie Farve and Jimmy Necaise on the front row as the green flag flew. Farve moved to the front in a side-by-side duel for the lead only to have both get together in turn one, resulting in Necaise being out of the race.

Farve was sent to the rear, giving the lead over to Marus Jacobs, which he kept for the remainder of the race. Michael Taylor moved in the second spot ahead of Jerry Farve and heat winner Kalif Sellier.

K. I. Davis III and Billy Joe

Schonewitz put on an exciting race in a light field of Late Model Sportsman. Schonewitz took the heat win, but Davis managed to keep him at bay in the Feature. Davis was able to hold on for the win. Marty Broadus finished third in both races.

David Holt won both Heat and Feature races in the Rookie class by holding off Jason Kilpatrick in both races. Steve Pate chased Kilpatrick to the checkers in the feature. Darrel Watts took third in the Heat.

Powder Puff action saw Sandy Stewart outdistance Gwen Bruce and Karen Kuhn to claim the top spot in the ladies race.

Keith Daniels starts a new era of Pearl River Community College football

Pearl River Community College enters the Mississippi Delta Trojans tonight in the Dobie Holden Stadium. It's the start of the 1995 Wildcat football season and the coaching debut for Keith Daniels.

Daniels has been a Division One assistant for the past 19 years, but tonight he's the man in control.

"The last time I was ahead coach was back in 1974," said Daniels. "It's been a long time and obviously I'm a little apprehensive."

Daniels said he is confident in his coaching staff, and he has good feelings about the Wildcats.

"I think we have everything covered," said Daniels. "Our attitude toward preparation has been good."

One thing for sure is that the Wildcats' opening competition will be stiff. Two years ago the Mississippi Delta Trojans won the state and national championships. This past year the Trojans posted a 7-3 record, including a 7-5 decision over the Wildcats in Moorhead.

"The Trojans have had a lot of recent success," said Daniels. "And success carries over from year to year."

Daniels said he was concerned with Delta's team speed. "They have big play capabilities with talented running backs and receivers," Daniels said. "They also utilize team speed on defense."

He said Delta will use sophomore Brantley Nichols (185) of Greenwood at quarterback and last year's quarterback Anthony Dixon (180) at running back and receiver positions. "We may even see Dixon at the quarterback position before the night is over," said Daniels. "The Trojans are well coached and very fast. It will be a great opening game test for us."

Daniels said defensive starter Eddie Coherly (249) of Kokomo had knee surgery Friday and will miss several games. "We have other bruises, but nothing to keep anyone from playing," he said.

The new PRCC coach said his team was ready to play. "We're tired of hitting each other," said Daniels. "We are ready to hit someone other than our teammates."

Pearl River holds a 25-10-2 advantage over the Trojans. In 1993, when the Trojans were 12-0, the Wildcats lost 35-28 in a thrilling contest at Moorhead.

PRCC won 42-13 in 1992 for its tenth consecutive victory of the year. Before that the Wildcats had won seven straight.

Delta beat the Wildcats 21-17 for the 1973 state championship, after PRCC won the regular season game 17-14.

Starting in the offensive backfield against the Trojans will be Jerel Posey (190) of Pell City, Ala. at quarterback, Ken-shun Smith (175) of Decatur, Ga. at running back, and Brian Hamilton (200) of Walnut Hill, Ala. at fullback.

Wide receivers include Michael Oatis (180) and Tim Pittman (185) of Columbia and Clinton Gillard of Sandy Hook starting at tight end.

Gillard and Farmer are the only freshmen starting on the defensive line. The defensive line includes Mark Owens (260) of Columbia, freshman Rodney Thompson (275) of Bassfield and Chester Richard (325) of Jennings, La.

The linebackers include Dewayne Antoine (221) of Bay St. Louis and freshman Shannon Monroe (227) of Thomasville, Ga. The starting defensive ends include Ardemis Wesley (234) of Camilla, Ga. and Jonathan Mitchell (205) of Carriere.

The down defensive linemen include Mark Owens (260) of Columbia, freshman Rodney Thompson (275) of Bassfield and Chester Richard (325) of Jennings, La.

Kirk Myrick of Poplarville will punt, and Antonio Carrillo of Hancock County will handle the place-kicking duties.

MGCCC cheerleaders

Pirates to be tougher

BY TRACI BONNEY
No more Mr. Nice Guy — so to speak.

Pass Christian football coach Joseph Brown plans to have his Pirates get tough this week when they travel to Vancleave for their first district game.

The District 8-A Pirates lost their opening game to the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chows 28-25.

The 12-0 score was due to several long-range field goals by the Rocks and some less-than-stellar ball handling by the Pirates, Brown said.

"We made four turnovers inside our own 20-yard line. We messed ourselves up there," he remarked.

"We're hoping to be ready for war Friday, because it's going to be a battle up there. We're going to go back to playing hard-nosed, aggressive football."

"We may lose some of our players because of the physical game we'll be playing. I'm going to take whoever I have left, though, and put them on the field. I don't care if we go out there with only 16 or 17 players; we'll field whoever we have."

Brown said that junior lineman Kevin Hall has a hyperextended knee.

"We're hoping he will be ready to play by Friday. He did work out yesterday — some light practice. He seemed to be okay."

Vancleave won its season opener against Mercy Cross with a 20-19 score.

"They have some big kids on their team, and they have a very deliberate game, both offense and defense."

"We were very passive Friday. We were feeling our way around on the field. We know what we were doing, but we weren't sure about it. We have to get aggressive."

The Pirates and the Bulldogs face off at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Vancleave.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. A quick trip down to the seawall will confirm the shrimp are running along the seawall just waiting for the fishin' buddies to put their cast nets into action. If you are gonna fry some of the shrimp that are being caught along the seawall you are gonna need a hatchet. Ya see, the shrimp are so big you need a hatchet to cut them in half to fit into a frying pan.

Okay, fishing buddies, no more messing around. The place to go if you want to catch fish is the shoreline between Herron Bay and Bayou Caddy. Reports are coming in of people murdering the flat fish, on a daily basis, all along this shoreline.

The Turtle has been murdering the fish in the mouth of Three Oaks Bayou. Reports are coming in, on a steady basis, of the fish being murdered next to the Jubilee Casino on Bayou Caddy. Now, that ought to be enough to keep you happy for a second or two.

The flounders that are being caught along the shoreline are being caught by working the shoreline using an electric motor to cover the shallow areas without spooking the fish. You need to be out just far enough so you can cast your bait close to the grassy shoreline on a high tide. But, don't get too close and scare the fish away.

The bait that has been most productive is a jig head on which you place a strip of flounder belly. This means you gotta catch a flounder first if you want to use a piece of his belly for bait.

Anyway, cut a strip of this white underside about one inch wide by about three inches long and place it on the hook of the jig head. Other founders think this is just the "cat's meow" as far as gourmet food is concerned. It just flat drives them crazy. Cast your bait toward the shoreline and work it back toward you with a series of jerks and stops.

The mouth of Three Oaks produced quite a few fish this past week on a falling tide. The most productive time was about one hour before sunset till right about dark. Most of the action was on the west side of the mouth to a distance of about one block off the mouth. Did I mention the best side was the west side?

Well, if I didn't, I just did. Anyway, there was a small log in the water right by the point on the side that was the most productive (west). Don't try to catch the log as it is hard to scale or filet. Besides, it doesn't taste good... I don't know maybe a little extra cayenne would work. Nah.

A different type of bait is needed at the mouth of Three Oaks. You are gonna need a cast net if you want to have any chance of catching fish in this area. The specks, reds and founders are feeding on live mullet about two to three inches long. As the Turtle has said bunches of times in the past, "You gotta give 'em what they want." This week they want small live mullet. Next week, who knows, maybe ribeyes.

Before I get away from the Three Oaks area I need to say it was quite a spectacular sight this past week. On one afternoon the flounders were jumping out of the water chasing supper. The next afternoon the specks looked like bullets coming out of the water after the bait fish. It was out of sight.

Several fishermen report catching some founders that went two and three pounds apiece. It seems all the rolling bones down by the Jubilee Casino are still making the fish hungry. The flounders were caught by wade fishermen using beetles bounced off of the bottom on a slow retrieve. The best time for the casino flounder action was between 4 p.m. and dark.

By the way, the fishing is still fast and furious under the lights of the Jubilee during the early morning hours. That is, of course, if you can get up at 3 a.m., yech!

Looks like those ney-sayers who claimed the casinos would ruin the fishing were dead wrong.

For the Kawaw-Bunga spear chucking crowd, the flat fish have been in the shallow waters along the beach at night just waiting for you to come and get them. All you need is your trusty light and your spear to have a late-night snack of flounder.

This week's wonderful wise words: The best fishing has been during the cooler times of the evening and night.

Do those big seawall shrimp take out drag on a cast net, Turtle?

Big boating weekend ahead

This upcoming Labor Day weekend has the makings of a busy time on the water for boaters and enforcement personnel, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

"This is the last major weekend of the summer for boaters, water skiers and others to be out on the waters in relatively large numbers," said Jimmy Laird, state boating director.

"We have more than 218,000 boats registered in Mississippi, and with that number growing each year, everyone simply must exercise courtesy and respect for others, or we could end up with a lot of people getting hurt."

Laird said this past year Mississippi had 89 boating accidents and 12 deaths. "We could eliminate these statistics if everyone would just exercise common sense and courtesy while on the water."

State conservation enforcement officers will be watching especially for boaters operating their crafts in a reckless manner as a result of being under the influence of alcohol.

Officers will be enforcing Mississippi's new boating under the influence law which says that a personal watercraft or a boat with a motor of 25 horsepower or greater cannot be operated on the state's public lakes or marine waters by anyone with a blood alcohol content of .02 or greater.

"More than 50 percent of the boating accidents in Mississippi last year were alcohol-related," Laird said. "This upcoming Labor Day weekend, conservation officers will be looking to get boaters under the influence of alcohol off the water and prevent them from hurting themselves and others."

Sewage waste intensifying

Residents told:

Attorney battle brewing

BY ED LEPOMA

A battle of attorneys is brewing in Hancock County over the mechanics of adopting sorely needed sewage treatment regulations in unincorporated areas.

Gerald Gex, who represents the board, told supervisors at their meeting Friday that John Scafide, the attorney who represents the Hancock County Planning Commission, didn't give supervisors the whole story at a previous meeting.

Before the Friday meeting was over, supervisors also lashed out at "half-truths and incomplete information" they said has been printed by the Echo in recent stories and editorials exposing the lack of any kind of regulations of onsite wastewater disposal.

Scafide came to an Aug. 11 supervisors' meeting to challenge Gex's advice, which led supervisors to rescind an enforcement ordinance. Gex said he had erred when he allowed them to enact the ordinance because a state attorney general's ruling holds that the county has no such power.

Gex told supervisors that Scafide, "failed to advise you as to the structures that were exempted" from the ordinance, as well as the legalities required to enact such a code.

In a four-page letter to the Board of Supervisors, Gex claimed:

The only way the law could be implemented immediately was "unless the board, by a unanimous vote, adopts (it) for the immediate preservation of the public health, safety and welfare."

Barring his declaration, the board is required "within five
